Co-creation method that allowed clinical stakeholders create their ideal discharge/educational tool for their patients to receive in the ER
Co-design session with physician interacting with the three different prototypes developed in the second round of testing
Use of the space in the immersive client engagement workshop (First round of analysis with Chicago Trial researchers)
Asthma Journey

Is there anything about your child's asthma you wish you had known earlier?

What we know

Use of the space to engage the different stakeholders, detail about the immersive client engagement workshop
Use of the space in the immersive client engagement workshop (Detail about the participatory activities that caregivers developed in the first round of interviews)
Caregiver of children with asthma showing how she keeps in a safe place the discharge documents that she received in her last visit to the Emergency Department.
Caregiver of children with asthma showing the discharge documents that she received in her last visit to the Emergency Department.
Detail about the iterative cycle of prototyping and testing with caregiver of children with asthma
Data collected in each round of interviews was analyzed using grounded theory.