The influence of contemporary living and working conditions...

on the philosophies...

that drove the arts programs...

and the artists at Hull-House.

The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.

Sadie Ellis became the first Hull-House settlement artist. Ellen Gates Starr, the youngest daughter of Maine (the goat); the young man lies on a thin mattress on the floor. The Hull-House offered courses in singing, ear training, piano, voice, and orchestra. The Theater at Hull-House and the Hull-House Art School nurtured a variety of artists and residents in the city of Chicago and provided the area’s immigrant and working class with an opportunity to enrich their lives through arts programs.